

Packing the Essentials

A bindle was essentially a sack attached to a stick that held all of the migrant workers' few possessions. The bindle would have held essential items like a knife, food, cards, and family mementos. Using this organizer, list the essential themes of the novel.

Stable of Emotion

This graphic organizer depicts a lonely, empty stable. Using this organizer, list on the left the different characters from Of Mice and Men. On the right, list the instances, whether through dialog or actions, that illustrate the characters' feelings. Use this chart to uncover any trends in these characters' emotions.

Setting and Mood

In this organizer you'll list the various setting descriptions and describe how they establish the mood of the story. Setting plays a significant role in the book. Imagine if, rather than set in the hard times of the Dust Bowl outside of Soledad, California, the novel was set in the jungles of the Congo—it would be much different. Use this organizer to jot down some of the detailed setting descriptions and describe how that setting helps establish the mood of the story.
