Making up Sarah's Mind

It must have been very difficult for Sarah to decide whether or not to stay with the Wittings. She came as a complete stranger and within one short month was expected to decide her future for the rest of her life. Surely during this time a lot of thoughts and arguments went through her mind - both for staying and for going back to Maine. Imagine you are Sarah. Using the chart below, list as many reasons both for staying and for leaving as you can think of. Then place a star beside one or two of the best reasons in each category.
