Goals are easier to meet when you know why and how. Why is your goal important? What will happen when you reach it? What will you gain? It will be easier to meet if you make a plan. How often do you want to exercise? When will you drink each glass of water? Planning ahead will make it easier to avoid bad habits.

Bad habits can often get in the way of our goals. If you like to watch a lot of television, it may make it harder to exercise as often as you would like. Staying up late when you hang out with your friends can get in the way of getting more sleep. It is hard to change our habits when you want to improve something.

Try associating your good habits with an action. For example, try putting your workout clothes by your bed in the morning. You will make your morning workout much easier to start.

Our emotions can sometimes get in the way. It's easy to feel discouraged or annoyed when you are doing something hard. Find a helpful friend who will keep you on track. Be kind to yourself. If you have a setback, don Net it discourage you. Remember, look for progress, not perfection!

a) What is the trigger for Lyla not getting enough sleep?

b) What is something that may still set her back?

Collaboration

3.	Owen has a group project at work. He is used to doing all the research for these types of tasks. One of his group members really wants to research. They suggest Owen makes the visuals for the presentation. This makes Owen feel uneasy. He already has started note taking for the group. How can Owen show he is willing to work with others? How can he show flexibility?

Graphic Organizer

4. Use the graphic organizer on page 42 to track your habit changing process.

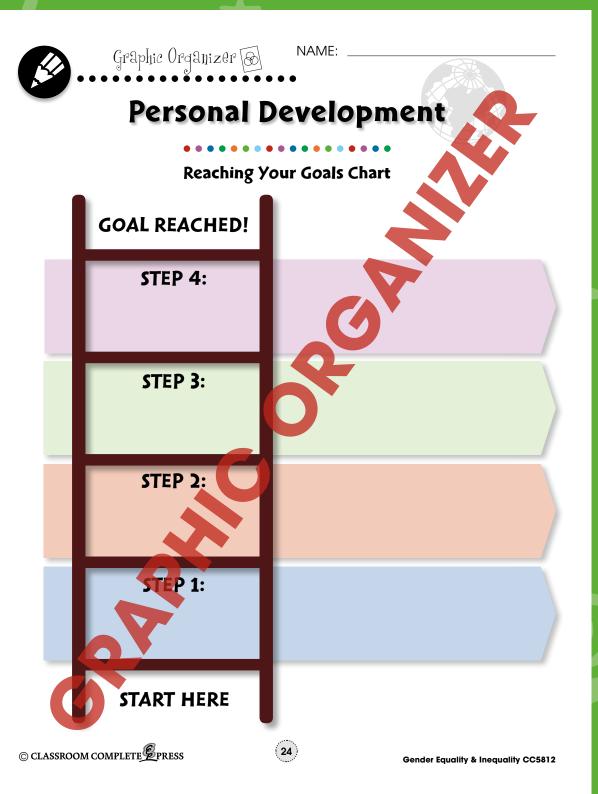

Habits, especially bad ones, can be hard to break. They can get in the way of reaching your goals and having the life you want. Habits are hardwired into our brains. We do them without even thinking! That's how you can brush your teeth automatically in the morning without a lot of thought. We create routines and patterns in our lives that don't require us to decide each time. It makes simple tasks a lot easier.

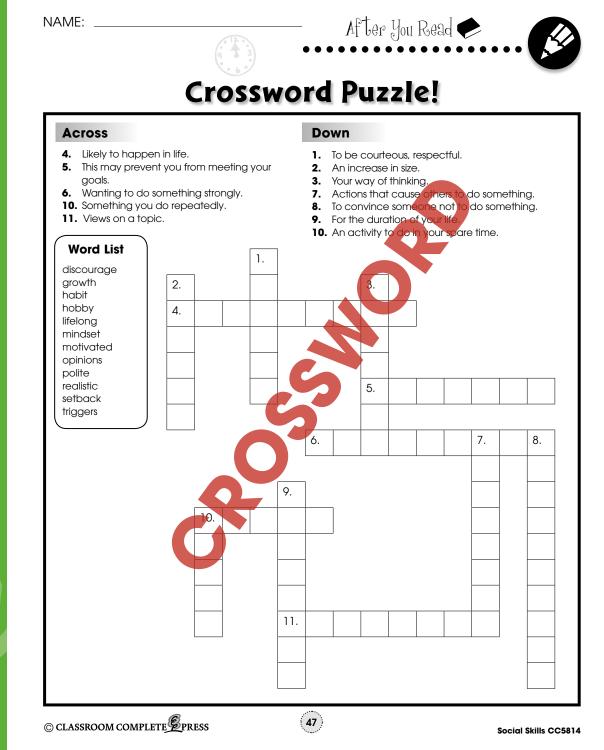

There are a lot of scientific theories that say it takes about thirty days for a habit to change. We need to rewire the patterns in our brain to make a change. Things will be less automatic after thirty days. So, what do you want to change? The graphic organizer shows a calendar for thirty days. Think about a habit you want to grow or eliminate. Would you like to eat more healthy foods? Do you want to read more? Write down your ideas of how you are going to change your habits at the bottom. For each day you are successful, mark it on your calendar. Even if you don't have a perfect score, any t is better than none at all!
