Reading Passage

NAME:

Location and Geography

he country of Vietnam is located in Southeast Asia. It is a very long and country shaped much like an "S". Vietnam is bordered on the east by the China Sea, on the north by China, and on the west by Cambodia and Laos. The whole country is around 1200 miles (1931.213 kilometers) from its' northern tip to the southern tip, and has an area of around 128,000 square miles (331518.478 square kilometers)

There are two major river deltas in Vietnam. One is in North Vietnam formed from the Red River, and the second is the Mekong delta in the south formed from the Mekong River. These two delta areas are the main agricultural growing areas in Vietnam. The main staple crop is rice, grown in vast rice paddies. Other agricultural products include coffee, tea, cashews, and Vietnam is a country of great contrasts. The north consists mainly of highlands and the Red River Delta. The south consists of coastal lowlands, vast forests and dense jungle. A chain of mountains, called the Annamite Mountains, runs along almost the whole western border of the country.

Can you name the two major rivers that flow through the deltas in Vietnam?

Vietnam has what is called a tropical monsoon climate. In the south the dry season runs from around November to April and has very hot temperatures. During the wet season there are large amounts of rainfall and it is not uncommon to have several days in a row of constant rain. In the north they also have a short winter season but the average temperature does not usually fall below 70 degrees fahrenheit (21 degrees celsius) in the daytime.

It was in this country of great contrasts that U.S. troops found themselves fighting. The terrain, along with the tropical climate, proved to be a real hurdle for the soldiers, vehicles, and equipment.

Organize a Protest

Americans were greatly divided over their country's involvement in Vietnam. Many voiced their views through marches, rallies and protests.

As a class, or in small groups, organize a protest to the war in Vietn

Research the reasons WHY people were unhappy about the w

HOW did the United States get involved?

WHAT was the turning point in the war? (Did the people support the war and later decide to protest against it or did they protest the war right from the start.)

WHO was to blame? If you are protesting the war there is usually someone or a group that you can blame. (often the government)

WHEN did the protest happen?

WHERE is the best place to hold your protest?

Also Remember to:

Write a speech about your reasons that you would give at the rally.

Make Protest signs and banners for your rally.

Think of some chants that you would use with the crowd.

These items would also require that you answer the questions listed above

REMEMBER:

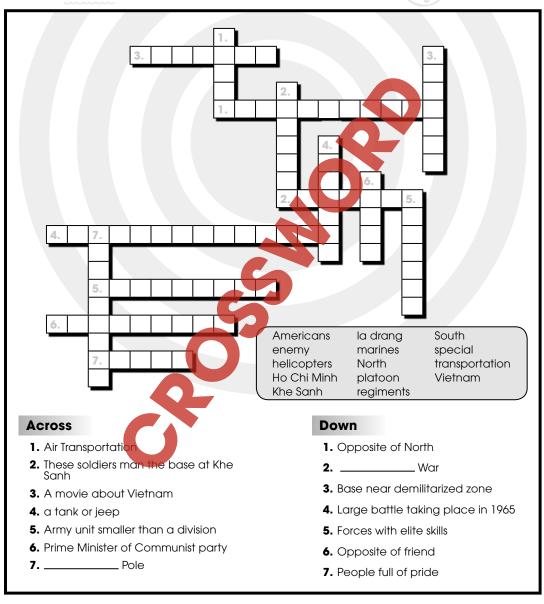

There were also ralles, and marches in support of the war, though they aren't as well known. Some groups could also do the same project but organize their rally in support of the war

At the end of the exercise you could hold a debate. Have one group debate the reasons why they are against the war and the other group can explain why it is important to support the war. Make sure you are prepared for any questions.
