

Pre-Activity

Think of animals you usually see only in a zoo or on TV and in the movies. A lion is a good example. List some of those animals.

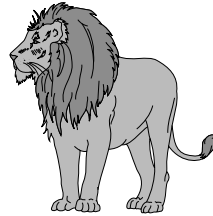

Activity

A. Complete each poem with one of these names. Then match to the correct picture.

elephant hippopotamus lion giraffe monkey

1. My name is Beck.
I can see over trees
without stretching my neck.

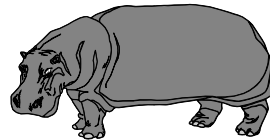

I am a _____.

2. My name is Sackit.
I have a trunk
and never pack it.

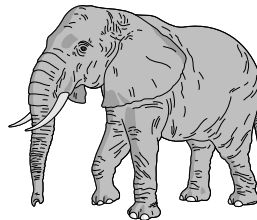

I am an _____.

3. My name is Bing.
Everywhere I go
they call me the king.

I am a _____.

4. My name is Gee.
I move fast when I climb a tree.

I am a _____.

5. My name is Rudd.
I'm short and big and love water with mud.

I am a _____.

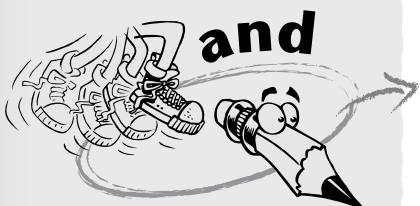

B. Think of the places where these animals live in the wild. Draw a home for a lion, an elephant, a zebra, or a giraffe. (You may want to look in some books or watch Animal Planet.) Add other wild animals, too.

Extra

Tell a story about when you visited the zoo. Or make up a story about a party at the zoo.

C. Write a “poem” of your own like the ones on page 14.

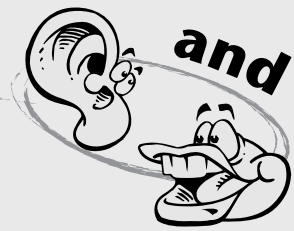

Post-Activity

As a special treat, today for a few minutes you can “act like a wild animal.” See if a family member can guess which animal you are pretending to be. Together, write a poem.

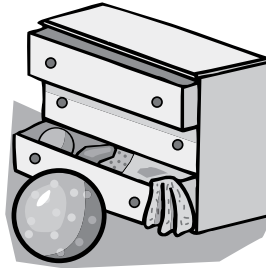

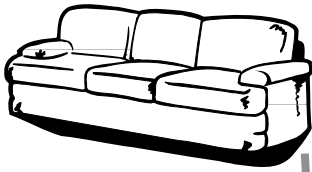

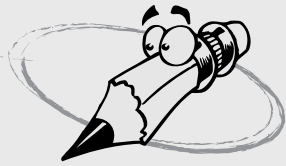

Pre-Activity

Most homes have several rooms. Can you name the different rooms in your house?

Activity

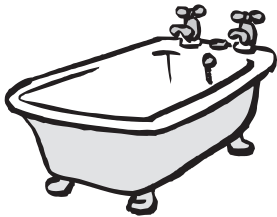

A. Match the furniture to the name of the room where you think it belongs.

kitchen bedroom bathroom

living room

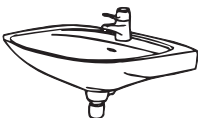

B. Match the furniture with its name.

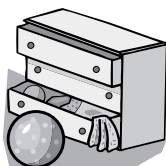

bookcase

stove

bed

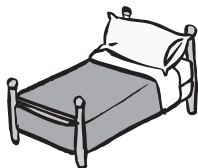

chest

table

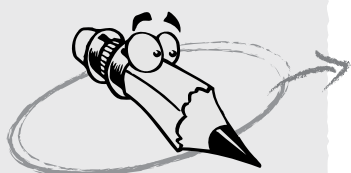

couch

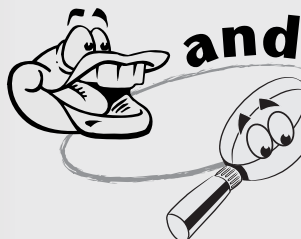

sink

Extra

How many televisions do you have in your house? What rooms are they in?

C. Write a sentence about your favorite room. Use an action word that tells what you can do in that room.

Post-Activity

Look at the ads in a newspaper with a family member. See how many pieces of furniture you can name.
