Five Stages of Plot Development

(Describes the characters and the setting of the story.) 5. (A tying-up of all the loose ends (Conflicts are introduced, and left in the story.) readers find out more about the characters.) (The "high point" of a story.) (Deals with the results of the climax.)